Every SUUPER successful coach knows they NEED a Signature Story.

You know, the story that builds credibility & inspires your audience to resonate with you.

But can I let you in on a little secret?

Most coaches and course creators tell the wrong story.

They tend to share a story that builds some credibility and connection, but it doesn't make the audience want to work with them.

This idea led me to create what I call your "Conversion Story".

Your conversion story is the right story to tell on every webinar, podcast interview, Facebook live, or email campaign.

It's the story that connects with your audience, builds credibility, and also leads to them wanting to work with you in your programs.

But you might be thinking...

1. I don't think I have a story:

I've heard this so many times. In fact, it was one of the reasons why I decided to create the Conversion Story Formula™. To help anyone and everyone find the right story to share, especially if they are stuck with where to find it.

2. I don't know how to tell my story:

That's totally fine. In fact, many of the people I've worked with wouldn't consider themselves good storytellers. When you follow this formula you get transformed into a captivating storyteller!

3. I think I already have a story:

That's what many people think until they understand the difference between an origin story and a conversion story.

The difference in results will blow your mind.

Whatever the case may be, the Conversion Story Formula will take you from where you are now...

...to having your perfect story that effortlessly connects with your audience and fills your programs with a flood of clients.

If you're ready to finally discover the right story to share with your audience so they come rushing towards you and your programs, then click the link below..
